DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

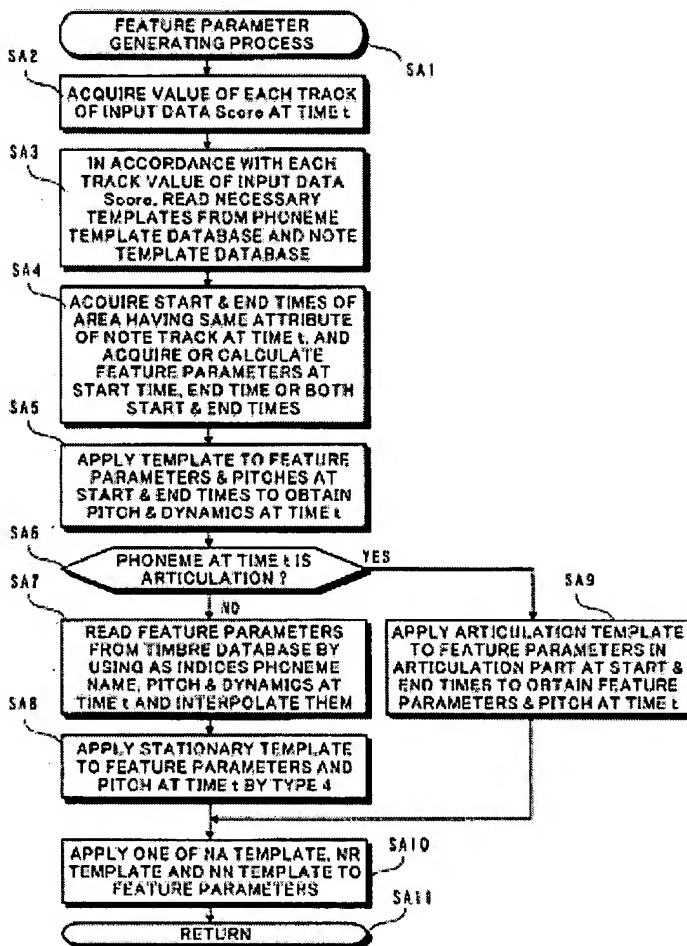

Claims 1, 2, 7-8 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Hisaminato et al. (20020184032).

As to claim 13, Hisaminato teaches a method of synthesizing a human singing voice, comprising:

“storing a plurality of template data corresponding to various notes, including attack note and none attack note where the templates include spectral variation and other vocal characteristics” (Par.0040, 46-49).

Receiving voice information consisting of vocal elements of a song; and reading the template data from said memory in accordance with the voice information; and synthesizing a voice in accordance with the read template data and the voice information (Claim 8);

as to claim 2, Hisaminato teaches a database storing several phonemes at each pitch is used to select proper phoneme pieces in accordance with the determined voice pitch as (attack note or not). (Par.0040).

claims 1, 7 and 8 are analogous to claim 13 and 2 and are rejected by Hisaminato et al for the foregoing reasons.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3-6 and 9-12 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
